Our Story

The Little family has lived in the area known as Honey Island, a part of the Greenswamp, since the early 1800's. Farmland has been passed down through many generations to eventually combine two family owned farms known as Honey Island Farms. Agriculture has always been a strong part of the family heritage as well as marine fisheries. The building Little Boy's Produce is located in was originally Becky's Seafood in the sticks, a family run seafood restaurant. Little Boy's Produce originated when two sons wanted a way to work to earn money during the summertime. They decided to start raising watermelons and selling them at a roadside stand using the honor system. As business grew so did the farm thus being named Little Boy's Produce in 2013.

Our Products

Seasonal fruits and vegetables

Our farming traditions date back many years from proper soil conditioning and cultivating in turn producing fresh quality fruits and vegetables. We use traditional methods of farming to reduce the use of harmful herbicides and pesticides. We rely heavily on hard work, the good Lord and the sun and rain.
